Actors reveal their best-kept monsoon skincare secrets!

Monsoons may bring a welcome relief from the scorching summer heat, but the season also comes with its own set of challenges. Monsoon can be harsh on your skin, leading to acne, rashes, excessive oiliness, etc. To keep the skin happy, plump, and glowing, &TV artists share their best-kept secrets for monsoon skincare regimes. These include Neha Joshi (Krishna Devi Vajpayee from Atal), Geetanjali Mishra (Rajesh Singh from Happu Ki Ultan Paltan), and Shubhangi Atre (Angoori Bhabhi from Bhabhi Ghar Par Hai). Neha Joshi, aka Krishna Devi Vajpayee from Atal, shares, "On a free day, drenching in the rain is the best part feeling during monsoons. But this might affect your skin, so it is critical to take some extra care. The humid monsoon weather can exacerbate oiliness and frizz, making it essential for me to adopt a regimen that addresses these challenges while using natural ingredients. I apply homemade cleanser made of be-san (gram flour) and turmeric mixed with milk. This natural combination gently exfoliates and cleanses my skin, keeping it free from excess oil and impurities. After cleansing, I tone my skin with rose water."

Also, moisturizing becomes crucial, even for oily skin like mine. I use aloe vera gel mixed with a few drops of tea tree oil. This lightweight moisturizer hydrates my skin and helps to prevent acne breakouts, a common issue during the monsoon."

Geetanjali Mishra, aka Rajesh from Happu Ki Ultan Paltan, shares, "I prefer washing my face regularly during this season. One of my go-to remedies, suggested by my mom, is a natural mask made from fuller's earth, neem, and clove. To prepare, I mix two tablespoons of fuller's earth with a tablespoon of neem powder and half a teaspoon of clove powder in a clean bowl. Then, I gradually add rose water to form a smooth paste."
